Street Tenements. It was on Nov. 9 that the tenement houses at 53 and 55 Grand street fell and killed ten persons. Before Coroner Herrman, vesterday, John Derr, a mason, testified that Mr. O'Brien, owner of one of the buildings, sent for him on Nov. 3 to talk about their condition. Mr. O'Brien said the building was unsafe, and that he had some trouble with Mr. Levy, who owned the other building, about repairing the party wall. He had twice reported to the Bureau of Inspection that the building was unsafe, but nothing had come of it. Mr. Derr went at once to the bureau and reported the facts to Examiner Charles K. Hyde. Mr. Hyde went immediately with Mr. Derr to look at them. The party wall had bulged toward the street, and there was a big crack in it wider at the top than at the bottom, and reaching from floor to ceiting between the chimneys. Mr. Levy was present at the examination. In the cellar there were six inches of water. The wall between the chimney breasts was snaky. Mr. Hyde said he would see that it was reported to the bureau at once. He had had no notice, he said, that Mr. O'Brien had reported the buildings unsafe. Since the buildings great the buildings of the buildings feel, Mr. Lattle had found that the party wall from the first floor on Mr. Levy's side had "kicked out" into O'Brien's barroom, and that a piece of the foundation wall, six feet long and three feet thick, had kicked out from the bottom, between the chimney breasts.

Examiner Thomas Lattle of the Bureau of Inspection said that he had examined the ruins, and made a diagram that showed the cause of the catastrophe. The diagram was handed to the jurors.

"Why," exclaimed half a dozen at once, "that foundation wait was cut, wasn't it?" nation. In the collar there were six inches of rested, not on the wall, but on posts next to the party wall.

Examiner Little said he believed the running of trains on the elevated railway had shaken the wail and hered to bring about its fail. The rumbling of a heavy wagon in the street would help to the same end; in tact, the wail was incapable of sustaining itself, and only a slight impulse was needed to bring it down.

A Juror—Was it not the Examiner's business to know whether such a condition of affairs as this existed or not?

Examiner Little—Ordinarily it is his business, but he cannot remove plastering or brick work at random to examine the condition of a wall, just because he can't see it without doing so.

A German Juror—Couldn't they have locked the door before the cow was stolen?

A German Juror—Couldn't they have locked the door before the cow was stolen?

The Other Jurors (in chorus)—The horse!

Weil, "answered the Examiner, "the houses ought to have been taken down in 1879, instead of naving another story added to that building."

Pollard Schall, a builder, testified that at Mr.
Levy's request he examined Mr. Levy's building, and asked of him it he hadn't better shore it up; but Mr. Levy did not answer. Mr. Levy asked what a new building would cost, and the witness said $12,000. The winness did not want anything to do with the buildings, and he would not have undertaken the work of shoring them up.

The Coroner read to the jury the following Unante buildings reported to the Bureau from Aug. 1.
1889, to Dec. 31, 1880, 1600 from Jan. 1, 1881, to Nev. 9, 1881, 279, and from Nov. 6 to Nev. 23, 187. Total unante buildings reported during Inspector Esterbrook's admin18tration, 726.

Frederick Nieman, one of the masons whom Mr. Lovy said he had asked to examine his building, testified that he had merely called at Mr. Levy's residence in East Broadway, and had not gone near the Grand street buildings.

The Bureau of Inspection announced yesterday that the following buildings are unsale:

Nos. 258 and 165 Front street, 459 Frant street, 55 Cher. Nos. 208 and 160 Front street, 450 Pears street, 55 Cherry street, 1 Front street, 25 Cherry street front and rear; 287 Front street, 150 First avenue, 1,294 Fouris avenue, 103 East Eighty-touris street, rear bonding at Fouris avenue and Eighty-touris street, rear bunding in Eighty-touris street, 164 First Street, 165 Chatham street, 1,18, and 26 Roosevelt street, 8 Califarine street (cellings), 852 and 854 Ninth avenue.

The Work of Identifying Property that was

Three of the four sections of Morrell's burned warehouses on Thirty-second street. Chair. work is progressing in the fourth section. The articles taken from the ruins will be exhibited according to the sections in which they were found. Those taken from section I were put on exhibition yesterday, and many persons who had lost property looked them over. Mr. Morrell received the visitors and gave them a pass to enter only when they identified themselves or showed their warehouse receipts. Many of the articles are of considerable value.

In the show window of the office was a great quantity of silverware, and in a showcase were many coins and articles of jeweiry. A frame encioned a letter in the handwriting of George Washington. Among other things were a gold medal awarded as a prize to a mastiff belonging to George W. Smiley, two sets of laise teeth, a dozen gold watches, and rings, lockets, chains, and necklases of all sorts.

In the basement were an extraordinary number of pieces of statuary, giass, bronze, &c. They were closely arranged on tables, which reached the entire length of the basement. This great mass of articles, that had once been of great value, had come from only one section of the ruins, and three more sections were still to be gleared up. Besides the articles on the floor—old armor, stage weapons, large bronzes, In the show window of the office was a great uable. A number of articles were identified by their owners. Frederick Robinson, the actor, identified a dagger which he valued highly. Ladies identified spoons and jewerry. None of the articles can be removed until all have had a chance to see them. On the third floor of the building was displayed great piles of dresses, clothing, curtains, laces, and other dry goods, also from section 1. Ladies were busy looking them over. Many of these articles were not damaged by the fire.

YOUNG WEINMULLER'S WOUND. Declaring in his Ante-Mortem Statement that he Doesn't Know How he Got It. John L. High, the student from Poughkeepsie who is held in connection with the shooting of Forrest Weinmüller, a fellow student, on Sunday morning in the St. Omer Hotel, passed resterday in the Jefferson Market prison, where he was committed by Justice Smith. He seemed somewhat worried, but protests that he knows nothing in regard to the shooting. Mayor White of Poughkeepsie and Mr. Carpenter, the proprietor of the St. Omer Hotel, called upon Justice Smith yesterday morning and asked him to release High on The Justice refused to take ball, eaying that the certificate from the physician in charge of the New York Hospital stated that the injured youth was in a precarious condition, and that he might die. There was some mystery in regard to the shooting, and there was probable regard to the shooting, and there was probable cause to hold the prisoner to await the result of Weinmüller's injuries. Mayor White then saked Justice Smith whether there was not some way by which High could be released on bail. The Justice replied that a writ of habeas corpus might be obtained in the Surreme Court. Mayor White expressed a wish to see High, and Mr. Jerome. Justice Smith's personal cierk, conducted him into the prison.

High expressed great picesure at seeing the Mayor, who shook him warmly by the band. The young man said that he did not shoot Weinmüller, and could not tell how the shooting occurred. He admitted seeing the pistol lying on the bed. He afterward saw him place it under his pillow. He then began to play upon a harmonicum. Then came the pistol report. Weinmüller was lying in the New York Hespital yesterday in a very critical condition. He was not suffering much pain, but he was very weak, and the impression of the physicians attending him was that he would not recover. When he was asked whether he expected to recover he replied, languidly, "I don't know. I suppose so."

the jurors.

"Why," exclaimed half a dozen at once, "that foundation wai, was cut, wasn't it?"

"It seems so," answered the examiner.

The diagram showed a perpendicular cross section of the party wail and the foundation on which it stood. The brick wall was eight inches thick and the stone foundation wail twenty inches thick. On one side of the wall the ends of the beams of the brist floor of Mr. Levy's house were shown resting on top of the stone foundation. On the opposite side the foundation wail had been thinned away from the tod downward for three test and four inches, and on the shoulder formed at the bottom of this space rested the ends of the beams of U-Breis's barroom floor. This floor had originally been level with Mr. Levy's, but the side of the foundation wail had been cut away to permit the lowering of U-Breis's barroom floor. Fully a third of the thickness of the wail had been thus gut away. After the floor had been lowered, the part of the wail which had been taken away for the wail was only between the chimney Dreams. The seven floor joists nearest Grand street tested, not on the wall, but on posts he act to the party wail.

Examiner Little said he believed the running of trains on the elevated railway had shaken the wall out on posts he act to the party wail.

Facts About Umbrellas.

Antiquarians say that the umbrella was invented shortly after the flood, and has been the least improved upon of all appliances for human comfort, the shape being now as it was in those youthful days of the world An umbreila is much like a pigeon as to the question of possession—the last one who gets it owns it. The follow ing facts about umbrellas-especially the lastone-may serve every reader a splendid purpose sconer or later To place your umbrells in a rack indicates that it i about to change owners. An umbreils extried over a woman, the man getting nothing but drippings of the rain, indicates courtship. When the man has the im-brella and the woman the drippings, it indicates mar-riage. To carryit at right angles under your arm signifee that an eye is to be lost by the man, who follows you To put a cotton umbrella by the side of a nice silk one rightfees that "exchange is no robbery." To lend an umbrella significa that "I am a fool." To carry an umorella just high enough to tear out men's eyes and knock off men's have signifies "I am a woman." To go without an umbrella in a rain storm shows "I am sure of getting rheumatism, and will have to use ST. JACOBS OIL to get well." To keen a fine umbrella for your own use and bottle of ST. JACOBS OIL always in the house, in can of theomatism or accident, would signify that you are risitor: "I would have accepted your kind invitation t visit you in your new quarters with pleasure before this had not my old enemy. Mr. Rheumatism, ; ounced on me so suddenly. He arrived last Friday, and without stopping to send up his card, rushed in and grasped me by the hand with such a grip that in a few hours my hand and wrist were so badly swollen and painful that I felt as though one of Mr. Hatch's coal teams had run over my Mr. Rheumatism has been a constant visitor of mine is several years; he always swells and buts on a grea many sirs, making himself at home, devouring my sub-stance, and leaving me poor in firsh and pocket. Last winter he came and stayed two months. I then decided that the next time he came I would change his diet. I was somewhat at a loss what to feed him with, but finally concluded to give him three square meals a day of ST.

JACORS OIL-morning, noon, and night. This fare he is disgusted with, and is packing up his trunk and will leave by to-morrow or next day; says he cannot ston any longer, as he has pressing business elsewhere. He is a treacherous fellow, and he intends visiting some of our
